Allowable Subject Matter

3. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: in independent claims 9 and 14, the limitation

"a channel estimation value synthesizer that synthesizes the first estimation value, a value obtained from the second estimation value by applying the phase rotation amount estimated in the phase rotation amount estimator to said second estimation value, and the third estimation value so as to calculate a definite channel estimation value"

is not found in the prior art.

4. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: in independent claims 11 and 15, the limitation

"a channel estimation value synthesizer that synthesizes the first estimation value, a value obtained from the second estimation value by applying the amplitude coefficient and the phase rotation amount estimated in the amplitude and phase rotation amount estimator to said second estimation value, and the third estimation value so as to calculate a definite channel estimation value"
